Key terminology:

conjunction, adverb/adverbial, preposition, inverted commas (or "speech marks"), clause, subordinate clause, main clause, pronoun, possession, subordinating conjunction, co-ordinating conjunction, relative clause, modal verb, relative pronoun, parenthesis, bracket, dash, determiner, cohesion, ambiguity, active and passive voice, subject and object, hyphen, colon, semi-colon, bullet points, synonym and antonym

Performance:

- Perform his/her own compositions to a range of audiences, using appropriate intonation, volume, and movement so that the meaning is clear
- Prepare poems and plays to read aloud and to perform, showing understanding through intonation, tone and volume so that the meaning is clear to an audience
- Participate in discussions, presentations, performances, role play/improvisations and debates
- Consider and evaluate different viewpoints, attending to and building on the contributions of others

Other guidance:

Pupils should understand, through being shown, the skills and processes essential for writing: that is, thinking aloud to generate ideas, drafting, and re-reading to check that the meaning is clear. They should continue to have opportunities to write for a range of real purposes and audiences as part of their work across the curriculum. These purposes and audiences should underpin the decisions about the form the writing should take, such as a narrative, an explanation or a description.

Pupils should be taught to monitor whether their own writing makes sense in the same way that they monitor their reading, checking at different levels. There should be opportunities to read aloud their own writing, to a group or the whole class, using appropriate intonation and controlling the tone and volume so that the meaning is clear.

Grammar should be taught explicitly: pupils should be taught the terminology and concepts and be able to apply them correctly to examples of real language, such as their own writing or books that they have read.

Pupils should continue to practise handwriting and be encouraged to increase the speed of it, so that problems with forming letters do not get in the way of their writing down what they want to say. They should be clear about what standard of handwriting is appropriate for a particular task, for example, quick notes or a final handwritten version.

They should also be taught to use an unjoined style, for example, for labelling a diagram or data, writing an email address, or for algebra and capital letters, for example, for filling in a form.
